STATE DOCUMENTS

Tobacco Retrospective

South Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets opened July 27 and closed October 23, 1998. The total tobacco produced this past season was 99,954,487 pounds for a cash value of $171,052,161, over $40 million less than in 1997. The decrease in cash value was due, in part, by lower yields in some areas of the tobacco producing counties because of poor weather conditions and because of the 17% quota reduction. The quota has been set at an additional 17.5% reduction for 1999, the biggest poundage reduction since quotas were instituted for flue-cured tobacco in 1965.

In 1996 our tobacco growers received an increase in quota and indications that additional production was needed to fill demand. As a result they invested in new equipment, barns, and land. Since that time growers have been faced with quota cuts for two consecutive years--almost 35% of their potential income lost through no fault of their own. Losing 35% of total income is a major loss for anyone.

On November 23, 1998, negotiators for eight states and the nation's four biggest tobacco makers reached an agreement to settle states' claims seeking coverage for government tobacco-related health costs. The industry has committed $2.2 billion to the state's general fund over the next 25 years. Soon after the agreement, I contacted our legislators as well as other state officials to express my concern for the welfare of our tobacco growers and allotment holders. I asked that they seriously consider their interests as this money comes into the state. Since the states' tobacco agreement did not address their concerns, I also asked that one-third of the expected funds be set aside to assist South Carolina's tobacco growers and allotment holders.

In January of 1999 a bill was introduced in the South Carolina Legislature by Senator Dick Elliott-District 28 (Dillon, Florence, Marion, Marlboro, and Horry Counties) to create a special Family Farm Relief Fund from a portion of the state's settlement proceeds. The bill stated that no less than one-third of the funds would be used for the purpose of assisting tobacco growers and allotment holders in the state. At the printing of this annual report, the bill was still pending.

Due to the states' tobacco settlement, however, there is expected to be a significant reduction in domestic tobacco use. On the same day that the states' tobacco agreement was signed, two major tobacco companies raised wholesale prices by 45 cents per pack, the largest increase in history. Higher retail prices as well as potential increases in taxes could cause domestic consumption to slip as much as 25% over the next 10 years, according to Thomas Capehart, Jr., of the USDA Economic Research Service. As offshore production by U.S. manufacturers continues to rise and as demand declines in some major consuming nations, the nation's exports are expected to continue to decline. Manufacturers import about 35-40% of the tobacco used in cigarettes because foreign tobacco is less expensive although much lower in quality. About one-third of the U.S. tobacco is shipped to foreign markets for manufacturing tobacco products. So, tobacco exports are very important to the future of the industry.

This is a particularly difficult time for all members of the tobacco family, including tobacco growers and quota holders. In light of that, the tobacco companies agreed in January of 1999 to create a trust fund to be administered by the tobacco growing states to compensate tobacco growers and quota holders from economic harm. Each state will have the flexibility to determine what is best for its growers and quota holders. The grower agreement which will pay $5.15 billion over a 12 year period, protects growers and quota holders with an economic safety net for the future.

In addition to all of the stress that has been placed on our tobacco industry this past year, there is a movement underway to eliminate the tobacco no-net cost program. The tobacco program is one of the most controversial and misunderstood programs in the nation. Tobacco farmers are continually criticized for tobacco subsidies to operate their program. In truth, there is NO tobacco subsidy. Tobacco is the only commodity program administered by the USDA that is paying its own way. To insure that the tobacco program operates at no-net cost to taxpayers, growers and purchasers of their tobacco must pay an assessment on every pound of tobacco sold.

Tobacco production has survived for over 300 years in South Carolina as a viable part of agriculture. However, the impact of events in the past few years has not only affected growers and quota holders, but also lending institutions, warehouses, supply companies, and local businesses. Despite all the uncertainties in the industry, growers are giving special attention to their production practices and management decisions, because they know that quality is the mainstay of South Carolina flue-cured tobacco, and quality is what will keep them in business. But, we must remember that the tobacco industry as we have known it for so long will likely be very different in the future.

Commissioner of Agriculture
